My family has lived on the coast of Cornwall in south-west England for generations. My grandfather was a fisherman, taking $(1) \dots$ out on the sea every day to $(2) \dots$ a living. Once the main local employer, the fishing industry ran into problems and its place has been partly taken by tourism. Although not top of the list for many $(3) \dots$ visitors, Cornwall attracts thousands of UK holidaymakers every year. Of course, they bring in money to the area, but they can also cause a lot of $(4) \dots$ to the local environment. Many people argue that tourism $(5) \dots$ jobs and this is true, up to a point. However, much of the employment lasts only for the main tourist season, not the $(6) \dots$ year. For many small communities, a change in population also has a huge impact on their identity. People from outside Cornwall have bought second homes to stay in over the summer. This $(7) \dots$ the locals' quality of life — our community is $(8) \dots$ with tourists in summer, but like a ghost town in winter.
