

Technology has contributed (1) ... education. For one thing, word processing helps you to write much faster and more neatly, instead of using messy handwriting. And spell-checks correct your work for you, which is good because then it's of a higher standard. In the world of work, computers have made job searching much easier. You can actually apply for a job directly on a company's website. And thanks (2) ... social media, you can connect with employers in ways that were never possible before. For me, that's what it's all about — providing you (3) ... options.
